

RIPE Altadena Presents:

FREE

Seed Saving Workshop

Sunday, June 26th at 12:30pm

Morrison Hall, Westminster Presbyterian Church

1757 N Lake Ave, Pasadena

RIPE member Christina Wenger will offer a class on the ins and outs of seed saving: the whats, the whys, and the practical how tos for all sorts of garden vegetables and fruit.

A high school English teacher and avid gardener, Christina Wenger is the author of the food and garden blog, "A Thinking Stomach." She is a listed member of Seed Savers Exchange and several other seed saving networks. She has previously taught a class for RIPE on growing garlic in the home garden. She lives on the edge of the arroyo in Altadena.

RIPE Altadena is a community group that shares backyard produce. This helps eliminate waste and increases eating of nutrient rich food.

For more information, visit www.RipeAltadena.com